POETRY

THE COUNTRY ROAD. See the dusty, trampled road,
Winding through the summer land
Hints of many a wagen's load.
Frinted in the newdery sand.
All the roads in all the world
Join this winding road at last.
Highways where the Caesars builed
All their painting legions past.

We can take this dusty way,
. Faring into foreign lands.
Where the londed camels sway,
Tolling over trackless sands
Pictures stories lenends fair.
Sunken cities red with rust;
All these things for excite the
Underneath the veil of dust.

See the ancient caraven
By the green oasis halt:
Here's the earliest merchantman.
Going inland selling rit:
At the rort the salt roads met,
Learning kindled up a light;
Here was built the alchabet.
So that merchantmen could write,

All the aris of war and reace.
All the learning that we've won.
Came on wher's and asle grease.
Where those orecious condways run.
How the fance lifts and files.
Each and forward as we look,
On this marks could that lies. Open like a fairy book.
